

"State's rights" seems to be invoked only when it suits the corporations. If it means anything at all, it should enable a state to be more vigorous in enforcing a social good than the Federal government is prepared to go, as demonstrated by congressionally enacted law.